Baldwin Had To Break Off All
Negotiations

ECONOMICS CLUB

Existing Coal Strike in Great Britain also Dealt
With

What is commonly supposed to have happened at the famous cabinet meeting last fall when the Government decided to break off negotiations with the General Council of Labor and thus precipitated the General Strike, were described to members of the Economics Club last night by H. C. Goldberg who delivered a paper on "The Recent General Strike in Great Britain".

The reasons for the breaking off of negotiations were twofold. It is believed that the first and most important of these was the fact that it was thought improper and even impossible for the Government to carry on any negotiations whatsoever under the threat of a General Strike. The other reason given for the break was that certain "overt acts" threatened the freedom of the press had been committed. The most notable of these was the Daily Mail incident when the printing staff of that paper refused to allow the editorial board to publish an article "For King and Country". Under these circumstances it was found distasteful to certain cabinet ministers to carry in, and it is claimed they threatened to hand in their resignations unless negotiations with the strikers were broken off.

The Daily Mail incident was really a trivial matter and was due to the action of a score of men who were acting against the instructions of their own trades union. It was even resented by their own Trades Unionists. Yet the action of these men indeed was partly responsible for the Government's attitude, and Baldwin later confessed as much in the House.

The General Council was at the time negotiating with the miners' leaders and it appeared as though an agreement along the lines of the Birkenhead formula was possible. There was, therefore, general consternation among the ranks of the labor leaders when the Government decision reached them. They tried to disclaim responsibility for the "overt acts" and protested against the ultimatum. When a delegation was sent to Downing St. to inform Baldwin of this it was too late. The Government had departed.

Another factor to be considered is that the Government was by no means taken unawares by the declaration of the General Strike. Preparations had been going on for a long time to cope with just such an emergency, and this fact probably gave Mr. Baldwin a sense of false security. It was a hasty step. Baldwin should not have taken up the gauntlet cast down by the printers of the Daily Mail.

On May 4th, a million and a half workers exclusive of the coal miners had struck work. At the height of the strike the total number of men out of work was approximately two million three hundred thousand. The general Council had an elaborate organization to contract the strike. The unanimity of the response of the workers to the call of the General Council was remarkable. They rose almost in a body to support the first General Strike.

The other phases of the strike were adequately dealt with by the speaker, who told in graphic manner of the gradual break-down of the movement due to the wholehearted support of the volunteer workers and others who responded wholeheartedly to what they considered an attack on the constitution. In concluding Goldenberg claimed that a General Strike could only succeed where public opinion is substantially in favor of its purposes. It must be subordinated to the general interests of the community.

J. S. Pemberton, Arts '27 was the second speaker. He dealt with the present coal miners' strike in England. The mining industry in Great Britain in the years after the war was boosted tremendously by several artificial stimuli. The French occupation of the Ruhr in 1923-24 practically meant the stoppage of the vast supplies of coal from that source. After the evacuation of the Ruhr in the early days of '25 the Germans began to develop the mines in that section once more and the British miners began to feel the competition. Exports drop enormously and soon the mine owners find that they are operating under a loss.

ATHLETIC CARD NECESSARY WHEN BUYING TICKETS

The following statement was issued last night by J. K. Sims, distributor of tickets for the Athletic Board of Control:

"All those who are in possession of the yellow tickets distributed at the Stadium, entitling them to a reduction in the price of admission to the game against Varsity on Saturday are reminded that in purchasing these tickets, it will be necessary for them to present their book of coupons in order to prove that they are bona fide undergraduates.

"Furthermore," he pointed out, "there will be only one ticket issued to any man."

YOUTH PROBLEM

Religious Education Sets up
Standard of Living and Morals

"Ours is the responsibility of passing on the heritage of civilization given us by our predecessors," said Mrs. Palmer Burgess, head of the Children's Work Board of the Religious Education Association of Quebec, at a meeting of S.C.A. of R.V.C. yesterday.

"Before us have come countless generations—countless will come after, and ours is the responsibility of passing on the heritage of civilization given us by our predecessors. What would happen if for one generation we did not pass it on?"

It is difficult to say what is the greatest factor in our civilization but unquestionably our religious inheritance is of vital importance. Judges in the Juvenile Courts of the States, where there has been so much juvenile delinquency say, "We consider the lack of religious education in early childhood outdistances all other causes of this." Religious education sets up a standard of living and morals not given any other way. In the past the home supplied such education but now it seems to have shovelled it onto the church which before had heavy enough load and consequently does not sufficiently fulfill this responsibility.

"We can easily think out theories for improvement but if we stop here nothing will be done. However lately more attention has been paid to social Christianity. We no longer regard it as just a belief but as a way of living for which we need much skill. And, too, a search is being made everywhere today for the real Christ as he lived and walked among us, but we are still handicapped in our children's work because He is so hidden by tradition. A leading educationalist declared that all the vital things of our life are determined before the first six years. The children seldom come to Sunday School till then which is one great handicap, and then when they do come it is only for a few hours out of the seven days of the week.

The speaker went on to say that a program had been designed to supplement the Sunday School work by organizing the children into special groups, through their imagination getting them interested in building up a code of living from what they learned of Christ's life. This sounds rather beyond a child's grasp but really is not so. They work out a code of practical Christian life at home, at school, and at play. Children would much rather do things like this than listen to lessons from others. Then they have explorations of the world. They learn of children of otherlands, their environment and viewpoint, their heritage and ambition, not with a superior attitude but with a view of creating a bond between them all.

Mrs. Burgess concluded by saying that at present we are faced with the

WINDOW LIKE QUALITY SHOWN BY AKSAKLOV

Prof. Stanley Spoke In Association
Hall

NOVELIST

Russian Writer Considered
Equal of Homer and Chaucer

Aksaklov, the Russian author was discussed by Professor Carleton W. Stanley, M.A. last night in Association Hall. This is the second free lecture which the Professor has given in Montreal. This course of lectures is an endeavor to facilitate the contact of young men, women and the general public with keen students of literature from whom they might gain advice and inspiration concerning books that may be read with pleasure, and not without profit.

Professor Stanley endeavored to impress his audience with the flavor of the author. He stated that although everyone considers Aksaklov as a novelist, yet in the strict sense of the word, he is not exactly one. A few of his books are spoken of as biographies or as memoirs but Professor Stanley impressed his audience that they were nothing of the sort. Aksaklov introduces us into the immediate world of an author, a new world. He seems to introduce his world to us through a window and not through a printed page. This window-like quality which he possesses impresses Professor Stanley as being an equal to Homer, Chaucer and other great writers.

Aksaklov was born in the European part of Russia in 1781. The district where he was born is situated near one of the tributaries of the Volga River near the Ural Mountains. This district was then inhabited by Mohammedan tribes who spoke three languages and none of these languages were Russian. Consequently Aksaklov could not speak or write Russian until he was quite advanced in age. He was born in quite a large city which was then the home of the central government.

The inhabitants were not only ignorant of the Russian language but were also innocent of Christianity but nevertheless, Aksaklov was a Christian. His education was quite elementary although he did go through one of the universities of Russia. He first studied the catechism of the Catholic Church but he did not like this very much so he stopped studying it. He also studied mathematics but this only included the four principal rules, namely, division, multiplication, addition and subtraction. Here he first learnt the Russian language thoroughly and also French to a very small extent. He also studied how to mount butterflies. This was all the education that he received.

Although his university course was very elementary, yet he could make masterly criticisms of books and authors. He then became a writer of some repute. He received a government appointment as an interpreter of foreign languages and afterwards as a press-censor in Moscow. His first literary activity was in the theatre but all his writings were then copied mostly from the French.

It wasn't until his fiftieth year that he wrote his Russian books which

SECOND NUMBER OF REVIEW OUT TODAY

Fortnightly Will be Available at 1 o'clock

Delayed slightly owing to technical difficulties the second issue of the McGill Fortnightly Review makes its appearance on the campus at one o'clock today.

The number contains a considerable amount of poetry and introduces to the readers of the publication a new McGill poet. Three of his poems appear in the issue.

In addition there is an article on the constitutional issue in Canada, an article on the problem of the lively arts and a discussion of the dance coming as afterthoughts on the Russian ballet.

Subscribers will secure their copies at the various buildings. Copies will also be on sale as usual.

The first issue of the Fortnightly met with a very favorable reception, the editors of the review report.

Dr. Laing Will Be Speaker At Canadian Club

Dr. Gordon Laing will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the McGill Canadian Club which is to be held in Moyses Hall on Monday afternoon at 5.15. A large turnout of students is expected to be on hand, thence the change in venue of the club's meeting place. Dr. Laing is at present Dean of the Faculty of Graduate Studies at the University of Chicago but was for a long time, Dean of the Faculty of Arts. Dr. Stephen Leacock will be on hand to welcome his old college chum at Toronto, and a present member of the faculty of Chicago University, which Dr. Leacock attended as a student.

MR. CHESNEY WILL STAGE "TOM JONES"

Choral Society to Produce
Opera in February

The Students' Council has sanctioned this years program and budget of the Choral Society, consequently the activities of this body are well under way now. The Society's chief interest now is the production of its light opera "Tom Jones."

"Tom Jones" is a comic opera based on the book "Tom Jones" by Fielding. It is on the same style as the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera such as "The Mikado" and "H.M.S. Pinafore." It is a very lively and interesting opera and the executive feels sure that it will meet with the approval of the student body and the Montreal public at large.

Much has already been done towards the production of this opera which will be produced at the Majestic Theatre on February 10, 11, 12. Mr. Chesney of the Montreal Operatic Society has been secured to act as stage director. Mr. Chesney has just completed a very successful staging of the "Gondoliers" by his own Society and is well-known throughout the city as a stage director. A Ross Harkness, editor-in-chief of the McGill Daily, has been appointed publicity manager. The business manager and dancing director will be appointed some time this week. The contracts for playing rights have already been signed and many other minor details have been settled. Dancing practice and stage work will begin early in December. In the meantime singing rehearsals are being held regularly.

When interviewed by a Daily reporter yesterday the president, A. E. Allen, stated that all the members of the Society were putting their hearts and souls into the work and with the co-operation of the student body success is assured for the Choral Society in its operatic venture.

JAZZ TEA ATTRACTS MANY

Isadore Aspler's Orchestra Supplied Music

Judging by the crowd which was present yesterday in the Union at the Jazz Tea it is evident that it is certainly becoming a favourite pastime for the students to be present at these musical entertainments. As usual the jazz spirit was present and made itself felt in different ways. Isadore Aspler's orchestra supplied the music. The applause which followed each selection was proof enough of the orchestra's ability to captivate the aesthetic cravings of McGill Students.

At five o'clock students began to arrive at the Union. Soon the cafeteria held a capacity crowd. The unfortunate late comers were obliged to stand for nearly the remainder of the hour. When the music had stopped and the musicians were preparing to leave a few students were a little lax in getting away. They lingered in the hope that another selection would be forthcoming.

MANION PROMOTED TO POSITION OF ASSOCIATE EDITOR

The Managing Board of the Daily announces the promotion of James P. Manion, Commerce '29, to the Board of Associate Editors. Beginning tonight Manion will take charge of Friday night's staff. Robt. RECORD CROWD ATTENDS RALLY AT STADIUM

Over 1300 Turn Out For Practice

COACH SPEAKS

Grand Rush for Tickets Made
By Mob After
Practice

Despite all the grumbling against the holding of a rooters' practice, history was made yesterday afternoon when well over 1300 students presented themselves at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium to cheer on their team in its final practice for its big game on Saturday. Of course, one reason for this record turn-out was the fact that it was necessary to attend this practice to obtain tickets at reduced rates for Saturday's game. Then again, there were many keen supporters of the team who took this opportunity of staking up McGill's chances for the championship. The result was that a very peppy practice was held. Long before the appointed hour students began to stream into the Stadium and by four-thirty the bleachers were practically filled by an enthusiastic mob.

Before the actual practice began, the cheer leader, Bobby Bell, made it clear to the "thundering thousand" why they were being charged admission to the game. Coach Frank Shaughnessy then came up to speak to the boys. In a few chosen words he showed just how much the cheering and support of the students in the stands helped to win the game. He felt confident of the outcome of Saturday's game and urged the boys to come up and watch the team practice next week for the Queen's game. He then went back to his task and the rooters began to strut their stuff.

Under the leadership of Bobby Bell the rooters ran through many old and new yells and songs. "Lucky Day," "Skyrocket" and "Choo choo" were featured. The practice only lasted for a few minutes but then the excitement began.

As soon as the practice was over there was a mad rush of 1300 students for the Pine Ave exit to secure tickets. For well over an hour hundreds of student pushed and bucked, were pushed back and forth, were crushed in the mad stampede of frenzied students, and finally came out dishevelled and sore, the proud possessors of small yellow tickets.

So great was the pressure of the mob on the ticket-sellers' booth that it was torn from its foundations and shoved right into the middle of Pine Ave. A section of the fence was also torn down. Hats were smashed in, coats were ripped, fountain-pens and watches were ruined, and many articles of value were lost.

This event will long live in the memories of the participants and they will always remember their struggle for the McGill-Varsity play-off tickets. It is expected that there will be another jam in the Union today when these men will come to exchange their tickets for reserved seats.

NEW MEAL SERVING SYSTEM STARTED

Ticket Holders Now Get
Warm Meal

Pierre's new system of serving meals was inaugurated yesterday at one o'clock in the grill. About fifty students were served in a fashion which satisfied the most grouchy of them, who usually were accustomed to wait in line trays in their hands. The meals were served in such a fashion that everything was warm and to perfection when it arrived at the person who ordered it.

In addition to the regular staff, two new employees are now helping in the daily rush for meals. They serve exclusively in the grill. As a diner sits down at a table he is given a menu. After the first course has been served the second is prepared. This does away with the usual method of allowing the second and third course dishes to get cold before they are eaten. At the same time there is a great saving of time. It is expected that before long more help will be employed by the cafeteria as the number of diners in the grill grows larger.

Parade Not To Be Permitted After Game

Whatever happens tomorrow afternoon after the big game has been fought out, it is officially announced that no demonstration or parade of any kind whatsoever will take place on the city streets. Following the last home game here both the band and rooters took possession of Montreal's main thoroughfares for nearly two hours and the consequence has been that several complaints have been lodged.

At last night's band practice Bandmaster E. M. Casey advised the bandmen of the above arrangements. The customary march to the Stadium will still be carried out, however, and the return parade from the field to the Union will also be done as usual, but as far as any official celebration on St. Catherine Street or others, the band will not take part in any such affair.

In the past students have not been informed sufficiently in advance to understand the state of affairs, so it is hoped that this warning will suffice.

TUNG DYNASTY ONE OF THE GREATEST PERIODS OF ART

Dr. Binyon Addresses Large
Crowd in Moyses Hall

"One of the greatest periods of art in the whole world, was during the Tung dynasty," declared Mr. Laurence Binyon in an address before a large crowd in the Moyses Hall yesterday evening.

The speaker who is curator of Oriental paintings and manuscripts in the British Museum, went into some detail to show, how the Chinese painter endeavored to give mere impressionism in art, whereas the Western artist tried to portray actualities on the canvas.

"Rhythm is not mechanical succession," declared the speaker, "but it is like the movement of a dancer. It belongs to the essence of life, and creates a sense of liberty."

"The Sung dynasty which followed the Tung Dynasty was marked by a more contemplative and intimate mood and was much more lyric," continued the speaker who also made mention of the keen respect for nature which has always existed in the Chinese race.

It was suggested by Mr. Binyon, that to get a proper idea of the mentality of the Chinese poet one should read the works of Wordsworth, which might just as have been spoken by one of the Sung artists. "Landscape was ranked above figure painting and through it the Chinese expressed the coldness of the world. In a noble landscape, nature becomes a mirror of the mind of man."

"Water, mist and vapor play a great part in Chinese landscape painting," Mr. Binyon asserted and commented on the prevalence of the dragon in Chinese art, the speaker stated that the animal is not the same as the European dragon but is a subject for art.

After a brief summary of the third period of Chinese art, Mr. Binyon summed up his subject, "Whatever the limitations of Chinese painting, no one can deny its art," he concluded.

Prof. William Carless presided at the meeting.

ALL LECTURES CANCELLED IN LAW FACULTY

Judge Greenshields Declares Holiday
For Today

ANNUAL BANQUET

Holds Lectures in Low Regard—Holiday Announced for Students of Forensics

"I hold lectures, gentlemen, in no regard as against a law banquet that I declare that there shall be none tomorrow morning," declared the Honorable Justice Mr. R. A. E. Greenshields concluding his address before the Law Undergraduate Society yesterday evening at the Queen's Hotel. He was immediately advised that the freshmen year had lectures in the afternoon, where upon he said those too, were called off.

Freshman students in forensics yesterday entertained members of the junior and senior years at the Annual Freshman-Sophomore banquet in the Queen's Hotel. With but one or two exceptions every member of the student body of this faculty was present at the banquet, which in the opinion of many, was the best yet held by this faculty.

Including professors there were well over fifty, gathered around the festive board. A general spirit of conviviality prevailed throughout, the speeches being for the most part of a lighter nature, and in many instances mirth provoking.

Gordon W. Webster, president of the sophomore year in proposing the toast to the freshman year, told a vivid story of trials and tribulations of his namesake, Webster, editor of the famous American dictionary, that brought forth the applause of those who were present. It was a story dealing with certain necessary adjuncts of virile man.

Frank M. Godine, in proposing the toast to the Alma Mater said that he had been coupled with the Dean, in order, that at least one of them might strike a sober note. He said that in the academic tilt the professors usually came off best.

The banquet ended in an even greater spirit of conviviality than that in which it had begun, with Morris "Rusty" Davis playing many popular airs, in the choruses of which all those present joined.

Those at the head table at Law Fresh-Soph Banquet were: The Honorable Justice Mr. R. A. E. Greenshields; Dean of the Faculty of Law; Mr. Justice E. E. Howard; Professor Herbert A. Smith; E. D. McCaffery; president of Law '29; Gordon Webster; president of Law '28; John Pirteous; president of the Law Undergraduate Society; F. M. Godine; F. E. Manley and E. Heeney all of Law '29.

NEW SCIENCE MEN FOR SCARLET KEY

Eighty-three Per Cent of Faculty Voted

Yesterday the elections for the Science representatives on the Scarlet Key were held. The elections which had been delayed due to a mistake at the printers resulted in C. Brain; E. T. Buchanan; A. W. Smith; and B. G. Coppington being returned from the five men nominated.

Only seventy-five per cent of the men in first year voted; but the percentages in the higher years were much greater. Eighty-eight per cent of the sophomores exercised their franchise while eighty-one per cent of the juniors marked ballots. Eighty-six per cent of the seniors voted. This means that eighty-three per cent of the faculty of Science, voted during the day.

The results were: C. Brain 220; E. T. Buchanan 217; A. W. Smith 208; B. G. Coppington 205; and A. Groleau 163.

DATE OF NEXT MOCK CHANGED

The next meeting of the Mock Parliament will be held on Wednesday Nov. 24, at 8.15 in the Union Ballroom, instead of Tuesday Nov 23, as was previously announced.

The subject under discussion will be a bill asking that the Imperial Government amend the British North America Act so that Canada can amend the constitution as Australia, and abolish appeal to the Privy Council.

Sidelines Growlers

WHATEVER may have been said about the rosters practice previous to the workout yesterday afternoon on the Molson Stadium, the turnout and the cheering quite evidently justified the Athletic Board's plan. Thirteen hundred men were on hand, and taken in all, the affair will have not been futile, if the same spirit prevails tomorrow when McGill clashes with Varsity in an effort to come to the top of the intercollegiate rugby union after years of playing second fiddle.

One thing, however, can be learned from incidents contingent on this rosters arrangement, and that is this: those students who either have not ability, or who have not the energy to do things, and are content to browse in the shade on the hillside whilst their fellows buckle down in an earnest effort to accomplish something, those students, we repeat, can best exist by keeping quiet, instead of bursting forth on the slightest provocation merely for the sake of bursting forth. Here at college, we have the time to properly profit by the weaknesses and follies of others, and unfortunately this type of person that grows but idles is enough in evidence everywhere for us to have plenty of chance to realize what a worthless being he is.

Those men and women who are attempting to do what is best for others who cannot do anything or even suggest anything must be aided rather than hampered. There are times of course, when every one errs to a certain extent, and there are times when a stir on the part of those concerned is justified. But this matter of student reduction and the plans whereby this reduction could be best engineered should not have resulted in the inane, insipid undercurrents of dissatisfaction and small-talk that were filling the air.

Those who are prone to criticize and mock the sincere efforts of others who seek for the best, are probably just the ones who would fall down hopelessly if placed in a position of any importance whatever. If you must criticize, growl and grumble, then at least look into matters and understand the situation before making a public fool of yourself and your type.

Here or There

NEUROLOGISTS tell us we use a very small part of our mental powers. The doctors say the same thing is true of our bodies, and of our wills says the psychologists, and the poet adds that we do not use our imaginations to the full. And yet the list is by no means complete for the successful business man thunders that we do not make the best of our opportunities.

Is this true or is it not? Is it true in part, or is it all true? Oddly enough we almost have to admit that it is all true. We can't get away from it, we are only fifty per cent here, the other fifty per cent is nobody knows where.

Everywhere we are confronted with that something which runners call second wind, and that men who know, call reserve energy. Every man who has been overseas, or any man who has ever taken part in athletics can tell his own pet story of perseverance, and achievement, of ingenuity, and courage and of triumph.

But the marvellous quality about this reserve energy is that it makes each one of us a potential success. We admit that we are artisans of our own destiny. And if what we strive for is worth striving for, then we should be prepared to give our all for it. But we never know when we have done so.

In our studies, in our work, in our play, we never know when we have reached the limit. Think of it, our ability is almost limitless, and seemingly impossible things are made possible.

A wonderful thing this reserve energy. It pays to cultivate it.

Correspondence

The Editor,
McGill Daily
Dear Sir:- It is surprising to me that there are individuals in this university who are actually putting forward objections to paying fifty cents for the game on Saturday. Mr. Forbes' lucid letter in yesterday's Daily clearly explained the reason for this by saying that the game is not a home game but one which is put on by the three universities ensemble. If McGill rooters are enabled to get in free, why not those of other universities? Mc-

GRADS AMASS HIGH SCORE ON M.A.A.A.

Henry Drew Major Penalty—Grads Excell Themselves

(By the Natatory Nymph)
Whatever will come next! Last night the Grads scored eight goals against the presumably invincible Winged Wheelers. Bruker and Vernot each were credited with three apiece. The Grads are very selective about their spectators but their choice is not to be despised. Those who saw the game in the Rubenstein tank were enthused to the utmost by the sparkling combination which was displayed. The visitors were not a bit taken that way, indeed it came to a blow in the final period when Henry objected to Bruker's manifestations in the shallow end. Henry drew a major penalty which kept him out for the rest of the game. Such an outburst from one of the proteges of Jimmy Rose is a bad reflection and is greatly to be lamented. Bruker came out of the game by his own request, for his team had already scored seven, but he stopped in to register an eighth.

The Grads feel so versatile that they allow their players to use any position they wish. This is rather risky and the result, although it gets goals, to a certain extent has its disadvantages. There was a resulting galaxy of petty fouls such as would only be expected in a junior game. It seems peculiar that, with their 7.75 years of experience as an average, they should continue to use two hands, loaf in the crease and do other odds and ends. Albert Farmer is a sharp referee they must remember. Giles was the principal offender but he worked well and has been called the Dinsmore of polo. Jardine took his turn out in the field and besides missing an excellent opportunity he robbed Bruker of yet another goal by hanging up too near the posts. There were no goals from the BC shots. This is significant in itself.

Brabander was by far the best player for the M.A.A.A. but he had no one who could be called a supporter. For the Grads, Vernot swam down repeatedly and his shots always told. The play always remained open for the Grads seemed to be on the alert for a break, in fact this is how most of their goals were scored. Except for the nasty incident of the last period the game was quite healthy.

COLLEGE GIRL IS SOUGHT AS LEADER

problem of leadership for this work. Those who have ability for such work and can do it now have a tremendous opportunity for bettering the coming generations.

After this business of the meeting—the election of an honorary president and an honorary vice-president—was transacted with the result that Mrs. J. T. McKay and Mrs. Harry Avison, respectively were unanimously elected to these positions. A general invitation was extended to attend the group preparing for the National Conference because there are to be fifteen women representatives from McGill and several of these are yet to be chosen. All students were also invited to the fireside musicales to be held in Strathcona Hall on Sunday evening after church. Tea was served after the adjournment of the meeting.

Gill is simply taking the same place as the general public. For her this game is one away from home because she has nothing to do with the running of it any more than Queen's or Varsity have individually—it is run by the Football Union.

But surprising as these objections seem, it is even more surprising to me that no rooster should be allowed to enjoy the reduced rate unless he attends a rooster practice in a cold, dark time of a day when a comforting jazz tea is taking place in their Union. Surely the men of McGill may be treated as men and not as children—children who must show that they will cheer the team or will not be allowed to go. Surely McGill spirit is of a higher form than that. Forced enthusiasm is not energetic as spontaneous love for the Alma Mater.

Since we must do so let's stop all the gawking evidenced in this paper for the last few days, attend the practice, and see the game. We'll win anyhow.

Yours truly,

Bed-Time Stories For Freshmen

Freddy the Freshman was a very good little boy back home and always used to listen attentively to his teachers. He loved his parents very much and always harkened unto their voices. Examples of his great affection for them are proffered, they are even in evidence on his registration card. When asked to give the names of his mother and father, he wrote down: "mamma and pappa." He was a very moral lad—he wouldn't go out of the side exits of a movie-show because of the Red Lights over them. Modesty?—why, he even blindfolded himself when taking a bath. Industrious by nature, he was always studying some book or other, or else pondering over some problem. His mind was occupied with greater questions of the hour than that of "What time is it?"

However, that was way back home. But now that he was at college there fell upon him the desire to learn the ways and wiles of other collegians. And with the help of a few new friends he picked up his knowledge no longer at all.

No time did he think that an arms conference with a girl meant the discussion of wars and battles. He found out that the moon as well as he often had a last quarter. He proved that late hours are not good for one—but that they're quite alright for two. Instead of taking ten pages of notes as he did the first day, he now merely wrote down the prof's name and drew the heads of girls. No longer did he say: "I beg your pardon, professor, but I did not quite understand the purpose of the inquiry." He learned that "Hih?" was a good-enough substitute. And the only joint concerts he now attended were the whinny.

Freddy first entered the portals of our House of Higher Learning in 1925. This year he is back again—in the class of '30.

BIELER EXHIBITION ON VIEW AT RITZ

Coloured Drawings Being Shown this Week

A fine exhibition of drawings by André Bieler, the Canadian artist, is on view this week at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in the Green Room. There are in all about 40 colored drawings being shown, ranging from $8 to $150 in value, and all are executed in the early manner of fresco painting. M. Bieler, although preferring landscape work, is not quite a true landscape artist, in that his work generally treats impure natural scenery, that is, with churches, villages etc. occupying some prominence; streets and animals are also used.

The work exhibits a decidedly decorative aspect, in that not only are the individual pictures pleasing in effect, but that they will harmonize and blend with a certain style of interior decoration when they are hung. This style is becoming increasingly popular, and will greatly facilitate the buyers who wish certain harmonious types.

Mr. Bieler has a nice sense of warm and soothing shading, and his use of two color tones, which is everywhere apparent, is skilful and charming in its masterly execution, the lights and shadows synchronising in an ingenious way.

In our opinion, the pictures which are the finest examples of his art are "The Donkeys at the Mill," "The Church of St. Francis of Assisi," "Dusk," and two Gaspé subjects, "The Habitant," and "The Codfisherman." Also deserving of commendation are "The Cathedral on the Rock," "We Two," and "Almond Blossoms."

André Bieler, who is now in Montreal, was, in 1914, about to take a course in architecture in McGill University, but the war interfered, and as he had been in the McGill C.O.T.C. for three years, he went to the front with the McGill corps, and remained there four years. He has studied in the United States, France and Switzerland, and has been until recently painting in Italy. However, he hopes to stay in Canada in the future, and work in his native country.

M. Bieler exhibited work at Geneva in the past, where he met with high success and great critical approval. This exhibition at the Ritz-Carlton is on view for the week of November 15th to 20th, being open to the public from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. All those interested are cordially invited to look over the collection.

Under these circumstances the owners felt that they could no longer grant the same wages as they had done in the days of the industry's prosperity and thus began the long series of disputes which eventually led to the great coal miners strike. Mr. Cook here enters upon the scene and his famous slogan "Not a penny of the pay, not a minute on the day" soon became famous. The strike was the bitterest ever experienced in the history of the industry, and was only practically terminated within the last few days, much to the disgust of our friend "Emperor Cook," who immediately took to his bed on hearing the sad news of the miners return to work.

The report of the Samuel Commission was also discussed at length by Pemberton, and also the various suggestions for the conciliation of workers and owners. On November 11th of this year a new conference was arranged with the delegates of the miners. This conference was empowered to discuss the subject of terms of wages and hours. The Miners Federation did its utmost to promote the immediate resumption of workers to their jobs by means of district settlements.

At the conclusion of Pemberton's speech, Dr. Leacock in a brief address welcomed all the new members to the club, and was very optimistic of its future success. At this point the meeting was adjourned for refreshments, and a spirited discussion followed.

OLD BOYS SUPPLIED OPPOSITION TO TEAM

Harrison and Burnfield Again
Make Effective Practice

VARSITY WEIGHTY

Hold Four Pound Advantage
on Average; Toronto
Arrive Tonight

It was almost a circus at the practice of the senior squad at the stadium yesterday. There was activity on every part of the field; well over a thousand rooters turned out to get their tickets and stayed to watch the team and cheer them in the efforts; Bobbie Bell led them in their yells and songs; Coach Shaughnessy gave a short address before he put the squad through their paces; Old Boys by the score turned out in uniform or cheered from the side-lines; Eddie Hanna walked around in a straw hat; and the rollers rolled the field. It was almost a circus at the stadium yesterday.

But there were no circus stunts about the way the senior squad went through their drills. For one thing there was more pep shown by the players than at any time this year and if enthusiasm will beat Varsity, the blue and white might just as well save themselves the trip down here. The Old Boys supplied the opposition again yesterday and with Ralph Harrison and Burnfield the Canadian National flying wing out, a driving practice was the result. Among the familiar faces were: Bones Little, Noolie Philpot, Joe Gilhooler, Tommy Hall, Art. Manson, Dud Ross, Cordner Wright, Joe Gilhooler, Graeme Gorie, Vee Heeney, and what a scrimmage they made it!

The sale of tickets yesterday morning augurs well for a record crowd, one that will surpass even the 12,000 that jammed Molson Stadium when Queen's and Varsity played off for the title here in 1922. There will be a seating capacity of 12,800 when the new bleachers are finished and if the weather remains favorable the charges are that the crowd will go almost 15,000. From the enthusiasm shown yesterday both in the public sale of tickets and the demand for pasteboards among the rooters at the stadium, there is no doubt that the largest crowd to witness a rugby game will watch Varsity and McGill play tomorrow.

Varsity Heavy

'Varsity's senior rugby squad will hold an advantage of almost four pounds in weight per man, when they play McGill at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium tomorrow afternoon in the semi-final of the play-off for the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Union championship. The regulars of the Varsity team, who will start tomorrow afternoon will average 169.2 pounds, while the McGill twelve will average 165.6. The Varsity squad are much heavier on the backfield than the locals while on the line the teams are fairly well balanced. In substitutes, McGill holds the advantage.

The following are the players who will make up the two squads, with their weights:

Varsity	McGill
Flying wing
Carroll, 170	N. Gordon 165
Halfbacks
W. Snyder 190	Cameron 110
Trimble 165	St. Germain 165

Total, 1,462	Total, 1,479
Average weight, substitutes: Varsity, 146.2; McGill, 144.3

Leave this Morning

Toronto, Nov. 18—Despite a steady rain and a water-soaked field University of Toronto, Intercollegiate seniors were at work again this afternoon in preparation for the game with McGill at Montreal Saturday, which will eliminate one of those teams from the running in the college union.

The players went through a strenuous workout and finished in a fresh condition. Men who can travel at the pace set this afternoon by the Queen's—Parkers and maintain it for an hour, as they did, leaves little to be desired

In the way of physical condition. The team, officials, the students and every supporter of the team who has seen them at practice during the past week are all satisfied that McTherson's men are ready."

It is freely admitted that the U. of T. players entertain a wholesome respect for the prowess of McGill. Aside from the form shown by McGill in games of the season, "T" cannot well forget the happenings of the past two years, when McGill, out of the running, finished the season with a decisive victory over Toronto. What then, is the question asked, will a McGill team in line for the coveted championship be like.

It must be admitted that the McGill teams of the past few years usually but a collection of raw material at the season's commencement "have improved immeasurably as the season progressed." The capable Shaughnessy can work wonders with a green team. Without any brilliant material he can whip his players into a first class playing machine. In this his last year at McGill it would be fitting were his men to surprise the critics by traveling over the opposition to the championship.

The U. of T. players will leave Toronto tomorrow morning.

BOXERS WILL HAVE MANY TOURNAMENTS

Meet, to be Held Next
Wednesday

A boxing tournament along the lines of the Tyro Meet held last year will begin on Wednesday November 24 in the Union Ballroom at 5. The tournament will extend over a period of several weeks. A number of bouts being held each Wednesday afternoon. The program for the opening day of the tournament will consist of seven bouts. The men who will participate have not yet been chosen but will be picked after Tuesday's workout.

Coach Bert Light pointed out that the contestants will be matched according to their weight and merit. New men will not be put up against old men. Arrangements are also being made whereby the men will entrain for Syracuse and Cornell Universities to engage in tournaments there. The bouts will be held over one week-end spending one night at each university.

The wrestlers are busily engaged in preparing for five meets which will be held in the near future. Amongst the teams to be met are the Y. M. C. A. wrestling team and the representatives from Queen's and Varsity.

The ranks of both wrestlers and boxers were sadly depleted at last night's meeting. The blame for this catastrophe can be paid at the door of the meeting of the Thundering Thousand at the stadium yesterday afternoon. This practice was held at a very inopportune time, that is, in the eyes of the boxers and wrestlers. Many, however, deemed it more important than those held at Strathcona Hall and the Montreal High School.

STUDENTS TO PLAY PROFESSORS

Dr. Maass Unable to Attend The Annual Match

To-night at 8 o'clock in the Union the students will meet the professors in the annual chess match. The following members of the Chess Club will represent the students:— A. Garelick; A. Edol; P. S. Wise; M. Garmalse; H. Cohen; A. P. White; W. Winford; E. E. Hardley.

Dr. Maass, who, along with Drs. Eyo and Day has participated in this match regularly for the past number of years, is unfortunately ill and will not be able to attend. Dr. Leacock and possibly Professor Lambert will complete the professors' team.

So far this year, the Chess Club has been very successful according to an executive and looks forward to making this year a banner one.

FINAL BIG THREE GAME SATURDAY

New York November 18—While the unshrinking Violets of New York University speed westward today to meet the crowning adventure of the season at Nebraska Saturday, Harvard and Yale buckled down to final drills for the last of the traditional Big Three conflicts.

he two foremost meetings of the week-end in the eyes of the east found interest in both at peak point. Despite the many reverses of both Harvard and Yale and Princeton's sweeping Big Three conquest 92 special trains have been chartered to carry the fur-coated and gaily attired spectators to the classic at New Haven.

The Violets, in addition to whipping eight straight opponents have suffered but 10 points scored against them. The western invasion the first of its kind ever undertaken by a New York University eleven marks the climax of the most successful football season in the history of the university.

Little hope of rugged competition is seen on the remainder of Saturday's card. Fordham-Georgetown and West Virginia-Carnegie Tech. alone offer possibilities of tense competition.

No Matter Who Wins

Although of course, we hope and pray McGill does, on the "morning after" the newspapers will give graphic detail of the game. Everyone will know the heroes of the memorable battle.

But to her—bless her heart—the hero is the boy who took her to the game.

She was so proud. Her Ruddy Roger stood out from all the rest. She didn't quite know why, but she knew he knew his part—as to overcoats.

Oh, youth will be served, as the poet sighed, and if youth is wise, he will be served, as to suits and overcoats, by Semi-ready.

R.V.C. '28 AND '30 WIN BASKETBALL

First Inter-year Matches Played at R.V.C. Yesterday

The R.V.C. Juniors and Freshies defeated the Seniors and Sophomores, respectively, in the first inter-year basketball matches which took place yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Hall.

The match between R.V.C. '29 and R.V.C. '30 was faster than that between the third and fourth years, the final scores indicating the state of affairs to a great extent. In the first match the teams were very close and improved continuously. The first period showed the freshies uncertain of their play and the game appeared slow and ragged. However, once the teams were once on to the game excellent technique was displayed on the part of both and the period ended 6-7 in favour of the sophomores, Miss Snyder doing most of the scoring for her year.

In the second period the players of both teams exerted themselves and showed good team work. The players seemed more confident in themselves and the play became very fast. Miss Tennant and Miss Tait did the scoring for the first year. A few fouls were noted in this period but on the whole the passing and defending were splendid on the part of both sides and one and all entered into the spirit of the contest.

The line-up was as follows:

YEAR I	Shots	YEAR II
V. Simpson	J. Snyder
M. Tennant	W. Whitby
Centres
B. Fernyhour	E. Johnson
H. Tait	G. Sharp
Guards
P. A. Gutellus	A. Morton
D. J. Ross	E. Peters
Spares
J. Ross	I. Bennett
M. Copland	M. Smith
M. Good	D. MacDonald

R.V.C. '27 vs. R.V.C. '28

As contrasted with the previous match the game between the third and fourth year was very slow throughout. Many fouls featured the first period and little good passing was marked. Towards the end of this period, however, the Juniors improved and raised the score in passing far above that of their opponents.

In the second period improvement was evidenced on the part of the Seniors but they were unable to break through the defense of the other side.

The line-up was as follows:

YEAR III	Guards	YEAR IV
E. Brooks	D. M. Roberts
J. Eve	E. Cochrane
Centres
K. Runnells	J. Fairbairn
M. Ross	I. Scriver
Shots
K. Hearty	P. Perry
G. McNaughton	I. Craig
Spares
C. Donnelly	L. Saunders
C. Lytle	A. MacKinnon
	A. Puerer
	R. Turley

The attendance at the games was unfortunately small. Contestants in matches require the whole hearted interest of their respective supporters.

JUNIORS GO DOWN AGAINST COLUMBUS

Gay Crowd Sees Columbus
Score Six at K. of C.

(By the Nativist Nymph)

Gaily dressed ladies and immaculately groomed youths of the Columbus club saw their clubmates win a decisive victory over the McGill juniors last night in the K. of C. tank. The spectators went away highly elated and danced until the early hours while the McGill juniors were left alone in their glory. The Columbus boys continued on their successful career in which they have never been satisfied to score less than five goals when they had finished with McGill it was six to one in their favor.

Ed Quinn was the outstanding player of the game, for he scored five of the winners goal and if one were asked to single out a McGill player it would have to be Thom. He was consistent in his checking and useful in his forward work. The Columbus team was far away above the standard that is generally seen in junior polo. The Quinn trio are heavy and work together well. Of the one called 'Ed' a bystander remarked that he uses it. To match players like Lyman and Keller against such immensities as Latourle is like pitting a newt against a Dinosaur. There has been some suggestion to limit the age of the Junior players it would be much more advisable to limit the weight.

Shackell scored the only tally for McGill. He had previously netted but his confederate, Lyman, had been encroaching in the forbidden crease and so no count was made. There was an alarming incident which must be commented upon; at one time every McGill man was down in the shallow end leaving Holland just outside the crease in the deep end in front of Buchanan in goal. Quinn sent up a long shot to Holland, who in such a position must have scored but strange to say he did not. What effect the screaming ladies had upon his nerves has not been fully investigated.
